The Ombudsman: Making Things Pono

Aloha!

Many Hawaiian words cannot be directly and literally translated to English. They can have multiple meanings and often describe concepts or states of being that are fundamental to Hawaiian culture. For example, most of us know that the word "Aloha" means more than just "Hello" and "Goodbye," and that "living Aloha" means to live with respect and love for each other. The word "Pono," although commonly understood to mean righteous, honest, or moral, is another one of those words that have a much deeper meaning that cannot be simply defined and must be lived and felt in order to be completely understood. It means more than doing the right thing in every situation; it refers to living your life in harmony with yourself, others, and your environment.

While we may not think of it as such, much of what an ombudsman does is to make things Pono; to make things right and to restore balance and harmony in the communities we serve and live in. However, we face many challenges each day as we try to produce big results with little resources and interact with individuals who are increasingly more demanding and less civil, while continuing to deal with legal and ethical issues. Through its annual conferences, the USOA provides ombudsman professionals with training and support to assist them in meeting these challenges.

USOA's 40th Annual Conference will again provide sessions to enhance the skills, tools, and strategies needed to be an effective and efficient ombudsman. The conference planning committee has also included sessions that will teach us techniques to help us better cope with the stresses and trauma we experience, sometimes unknowingly, in our daily lives at and outside of work.

Please join us September 16-20, 2019, in Honolulu, Hawaii, where 50 years ago, the Hawaii Ombudsman's office opened its doors as the first classical ombudsman office in the United States. We are confident that you will find this conference one to remember.

Dealing with Unreasonable Complainant Conduct

Participants will learn the strategies developed as part of a joint project by the nine Australian Parliamentary Ombudsman offices to deal with UCC. This very popular and world-renowned one-day workshop will provide participants with specific strategies and skills to effectively and confidently deal with UCC. It is designed for staff who come into contact with, or respond to, complainants or customers who display unreasonable conduct, as well as supervisors and senior management responsible for setting complaint handling policy. The workshop will also examine participant examples of UCC. Participants will learn:

- Strategies for managing UCC;
- Key messages for complainants/clients/staff;
- Ways to support staff in implementing strategies; and
- Staff health and safety considerations.

In this session, we will review planning for a complex investigation based on a social welfare case, and interviewing best practices. We will then explore how to optimize stakeholder relationships and demonstrate value through strategic communications. Participants will understand the fundamentals of credible and thorough investigations, including how to identify issues, plan effectively, and conduct effective witness interviews.

They will learn why public communication is critical during and after an investigation, and learn how to reach stakeholder groups, build collaborative relationships with stakeholders and demonstrate fairness and value through balanced messaging.

De-Stressing the Ombudsman

Stress is an inescapable part of modern human life. We may not be able to escape it completely, yet we can certainly undertake some simple and effective things to lessen its effects in our lives. Ombudsmen often find themselves in the eye of a stressful conflict storm. While their primary function is to serve as independent, impartial investigators, ombudsmen often find themselves acting as counselors and coaches for persons who feel aggrieved by their government. They provide complainants a place to vet their grievances and emotions and as such, ombudsmen are subject to a very stressful working environment, which often goes unaddressed to the detriment of their health and well-being. This interactive workshop is designed to be a practical guide for self-motivated de-stressing in your office or other workday setting.

Presenters: Thomas and Louisa DiGrazia, Yoga School of Kailua, Inc

10:30 am – 10:45 am Break

10:45 am – 12:00 pm Concurrent Session 1/A

Going Beyond the Report

Ombudsman work involves creating solutions and writing recommendations to create system change. Unfortunately, due to time and resource constraints, no one entity typically takes responsibility for implementing recommendations—leaving good reports to sit on shelves. This presentation will use real case examples to demonstrate how to leverage your reports and findings into regulatory and legal change through principles of facilitation, collaboration, and education. The strategies discussed in this session will provide attendees with tools to communicate and translate their work into long-lasting and meaningful change.

Presenter: Stephanie Villafuerte, Child Protection Ombudsman, Colorado Child Protection Ombudsman Office

10:45 am – 12:00 pm Concurrent Session 1/B

The Art of Intake

Intake is the first – and arguably the most important – step of the complainant handling process. How well is your office's intake process working? This session will discuss basic intake principles and the skill sets required for the job. The presenter has processed over 10,000 intakes in 24 years and will share her experience with a variety of intake processes; the benefits, the basic requirements, and the cautions. Attendees will learn tips on how to improve overall office efficiency and staff satisfaction.

How Can Understanding the Science of Human Behavior Improve Ombudsman Work

Human behavior impacts everything we do. The presenter will explain applied behavior analysis (ABA) and the seven dimensions of the science. ABA knowledge and applicable interventions can be particularly helpful for those intervening on behalf of students, children, and individuals with mental health and/or developmental disabilities. The science of human behavior will be discussed in the context of daily life, performance management, and ombudsman work. Examples will be provided of how understanding basic principles of human behavior improves practices and outcomes in working with requestors, coworkers, and subjects of investigations.

Presenter: Traci L. Shinabarger, Chief Child and Family Ombudsman, Montana Department of Justice

1:30 pm – 3:00 pm Concurrent Session 2/B

Reflections on Ombudsmanship: Looking Back and Looking Forward

This session will provide attendees a view of the ombudsman from both within and outside the office, drawing on the presenter's experiences as Ombudsman for the Province of British Columbia and his subsequent work as a consultant and senior official within organizations subject to the review of the provincial ombudsman. In addition to speaking on the relationship between the Ombudsman and the authorities, departments, or organizations that are subject to the ombudsman's oversight, the presenter will speak on challenges that many ombudsman offices are or will be facing, such as expansion of jurisdiction and use of social media.

Presenter: Howard Kushner, Commissioner for Teacher Regulation, Province of British Columbia

3:00 pm – 3:15 pm Break

3:15 pm – 4:30 pm Concurrent Session 3/A

USOA Chapter Meetings

USOA members have different areas of authority, interest, and expertise in their jobs. For this reason, a number of specialized chapters are organized within USOA to share experiences, resources, accomplishments and to problem-solve. This time also allows chapter members to develop a plan of action for the upcoming year.

You do not have to be a chapter member to attend any of these meetings.

Ombudsmen are particularly dependent upon our colleagues for their support, wisdom and experience. USOA provides the infrastructure and contacts to assist individuals and offices to make these connections. If you're new to the organization or always wanted to better understand how it works, this session is for you. USOA's President, Robin Matsunaga, will lead a panel of Board members in discussion and field questions about USOA, its history, mission, and opportunities for member involvement, as well as answer questions regarding topics of interest to attendees.

This presentation will highlight the key initiatives, challenges, and outcomes the British Columbia office has experienced in working to offer preventative approaches to supporting good public administration. Participants will learn how an ombudsperson can effect change through voluntary and strategic engagement with public bodies while still maintaining independence, impartiality, and investigative integrity as an oversight body.

Presenters: Rachel Warren, Manager, Prevention Initiatives, Office of the Ombudsperson, British Columbia

9:00 am – 10:30 am Plenary Session 2

Open Café Style Discussions about Critical Issues

This session is an interactive learning exercise on relevant topics. Common ombudsman issues and practices will be discussed in timed small group discussions. Each table in the room will have a designated topic and table facilitator. Participants may choose five topical discussions in which to participate as a time keeper moves participants at timed 13-minute intervals. Got a nagging complaint you have often wondered how other ombudsmen handle? Wondering about case management systems? Join the café-style discussions to share your experiences and hear what other ombudsmen know.

Office Operations: Wisdom and Grit

Whether you are starting a new office or yours is well established, long term success hinges on building and maintaining a solid foundation. Strong operational foundations include accurate and flexible job descriptions, hiring and managing employees, establishing operational policies, selecting an appropriate and sustainable case managements system, negotiating a meaningful budget, creating and maintaining an effective social media presence and building productive relationships with agencies, media and community. Session participants will hear from both ends of the operational spectrum as the co-presenters include an office in its infancy and one that will celebrate its 50th anniversary next year.

Attendees will also be encouraged to share their experiences.

How to Know Everything: Operational Knowledge Management for Public Ombuds

The success of any ombuds organization is highly dependent on its ability to access information. The staff of ombuds organizations with broad jurisdiction are tasked with a monumental challenge of knowing the full spectrum of government services and programs they oversee, the legislation and policies that govern them, the applicable complaint and appeal processes, key points of contact, and ongoing systemic concerns – all of which are subject to change. Since 2011, the Office of the BC Ombudsperson has been exploring modern and innovative approaches to managing its operational knowledge. From developing an office wiki database to incorporating Knowledge Management as a cornerstone of their Strategic Plan, the presenter will share their office's challenges, approaches, successes, and the lessons learned over the past eight years. Attendees will also be invited to contribute to a discussion around sectoral best practice.

Presenter: *David Murray, Director, Intake, Planning, Policy and Research,
Office of the British Columbia Ombudsperson*

How Our Office Develops Efficient Non-Binding Recommendations

An ombudsman's report is critical in an environment of changing government priorities and nonbinding recommendations. These presenters will explain how investigations are undertaken in Canadian federal prisons and share lessons learned after undertaking two systemic investigations in partnership with government at the local, regional, and national level. They will also demonstrate how a comprehensive investigative approach ensures accountability and implementation of effective, non-binding recommendations.

Ethical Decision Making and Effective Communication

The most important and difficult tasks for an ombudsman are making ethical decisions and communicating effectively. Ethical decision making is often challenging due to conflicting priorities and values. Making decisions ethically requires knowledge, wisdom and skill. It is not a simple or easy task.

The ability to communicate clearly and effectively is essential to being an effective ombudsman. The better you are able to speak, get your points across, and understand others, the more successful you will be.

This presentation offers an overview of the values and principles of ethical decision making, an in-depth perspective of key ethical standards, and a detailed step-by-step action plan that can be applied to any important and difficult decision. You will also learn critically important skills that you can apply immediately which will improve your effectiveness and your productivity.

Hawaii's Aloha Spirit Law

"Aloha Spirit". (a) "Aloha Spirit" is the coordination of mind and heart within each person. It brings each person to the self. Each person must think and emote good feelings to others. In the contemplation and presence of the life force, "Aloha", the following unuhi laula loa may be used:

- "Akahai", meaning kindness to be expressed with tenderness;
- "Lokahi", meaning unity, to be expressed with harmony;
- "Oluolu", meaning agreeable, to be expressed with pleasantness;
- "Haahaa", meaning humility, to be expressed with modesty;
- "Ahonui", meaning patience, to be expressed with perseverance.

These are traits of character that express the charm, warmth and sincerity of Hawaii's people. It was the working philosophy of native Hawaiians and was presented as a gift to the people of Hawaii. "Aloha" is more than a word of greeting or farewell or a salutation. "Aloha" means mutual regard and affection and extends warmth in caring with no obligation in return. "Aloha" is the essence of relationships in which each person is important to every other person for collective existence. "Aloha" means to hear what is not said, to see what cannot be seen and to know the unknowable.

(b) In exercising their power on behalf of the people and in fulfillment of their responsibilities, obligations and service to the people, the legislature, governor, lieutenant governor, executive officers of each department, the chief justice, associate justices, and judges of the appellate, circuit, and district courts may contemplate and reside with the life force and give consideration to the "Aloha Spirit."
